

Washington Report

by GEORGE ANDREWS
Member of Congress
Third District of Ala.

Congress has made it crystal clear that the country's rising crime rate will continue to be a matter of top priority. The American public rightly demands nothing less.

The House of Representatives was nearly unanimous in its approval last week in passing, by a lopsided 348-2 vote, the Omnibus Crime Control and Safe Streets Act Amendments of 1970.

This legislation gives new punch to the Omnibus Crime Control and Safe Streets Act, which was the first real frontal assault on the crime problem when it was passed by Congress in 1968.

Appropriations totaling $3.2 billion will be expended over the next three years to provide grants for research, education, training, and a general upgrading of our correctional institutions, as well as for other law enforcement purposes.

All Americans are painfully aware of the crime problem. Spending this money to help crime. Many of our large cities, including the Nation's capitals, are little more than jungles, where walking the streets in the daylight or dark is a risky proposition.

Crime in the United States rose by 11 percent in 1969, and the increase since 1960 has been a staggering 120 percent. Unbridled crime is also an expensive problem. In 1968, alone, the cost of crime in this country was more than $31 billion.

The 1970 Amendments provide a number of improvements to the 1968 Safe Streets Act, which established the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration in the Department of Justice to help state and local governments in controlling crime and upgrading the quality of criminal justice.

Perhaps the most important feature of this new legislation is the new STATE ANTI-LITTER CAMPAIGN ENTERING FOURTH WEEK.

The Alabama Highway Department's second Anti-Litter Campaign is now in its fourth week. Some 800 employees have completed three weeks of walking Alabama's highways in an effort to clean up the mess made by thoughtless people.

Every year, Alabama taxpayers spend approximately a million dollars on highway clean-up alone. This needless waste of money is brought about through carelessness. Maybe a gum wrapper or sandwich bag or empty bottle or can does not seem like much to be tossed out of a car. But the consequences can be dangerous and costly. Littering is dangerous because broken windshields, ruined tires, and obstructions of vision often result and are the direct cause of highway accidents. Litter piles up and becomes a haven for rats and other disease-carrying pests. Litter is costly in two ways: in the outlay of tax dollars to clean it up, and in the outlay of fines to persons found guilty of littering.

Last year's Anti-Litter Campaign cost Alabama taxpayers about $250,000. Litter is a major problem, and enough trash was picked up to fill almost 200 thousand 20-gallon garbage cans. Already this year, workers have collected enough litter deposited by junkies to fill 441 20-gallon containers, and the cost is already over $195 thousand.

For safety and economy, as well as for the beauty of the State, you are urged to keep and use litter bags in your car. "Don't be a Junkie."

islation is that it retains the principle of making block grants to the states and requires that 85 percent of all funds must be distributed in accordance with state plans.

In an age when the Federal Government tries to control everything that it finances, regardless of clear Constitutional restrictions, the idea that the states will decide how Federal funds will be distributed is a welcomed change. Providing greater local community participation in planning and spending the crime war makes sense both in principle and practice. The differences that may arise between cities, counties, and suburban planning commissions can best be negotiated by state officials.

Obviously state officials are much more familiar with local problems than Washington bureaucrats. The alternative to the block grant approach would be a program solely of direct grants to the cities, which would breed a whole new Federal bureaucracy to monitor and control every anticrime activity in the country. We need only to look at the Federal Government's involvement in public education to see the dangers in such an arrangement. Another important aspect of the 1970 Amendments is that they represent a direct attack on organized crime through the development of regional and national training programs to instruct state and local law enforcement officials in specialized fields of crime.

Organized crime is growing, and it required special emphasis. The bill also calls for the construction, acquisition, and renovation of correctional facilities, and it earmarks 25 percent of the total appropriations for corrections activities, including probation and parole. We have too long neglected our penal institutions, another, and more serious which not only must serve crime.

as centers of confinement but as centers of rehabilitation as well. If we are to be successful in eliminating crime, we have to heed the advice of former Director of the U. S. Bureau of Prisons, James V. Bennett, who said, "From 50 to 70 percent of those who leave our prisons go on to commit other crimes, and more serious which not only must serve crime."

Highway Patrol Report Is Released

From 6:00 P. M. Friday through 12 midnight Sunday, your Alabama highway patrol investigated 162 rural traffic accidents. In these accidents 112 persons were injured and 2 were killed. The fatalities occurred in the following counties: one in Jefferson and one in Tallapoosa. These accidents caused the number of persons killed in Alabama this year to 453 compared with 473 killed during the same period last year. This is a decrease of 20 fatalities. The eight county Dothan district troopers investigated 11 accidents with 7 injuries and no fatalities over the week-end. The traffic law violations causing these accidents were: driving while intoxicated, speed, failure to yield right-of-way, wrong side of road, improper lights, improper steering, road conditions, and failure to stop. The Dothan district has 28 fatalities so far this year as compared with 34 at this same time last year. District wide we are down 6 fatalities.

Coffee County Troopers investigated 3 accidents this week end with 3 injuries and no fatalities. So far this year 5 people have died in rural Coffee County traffic as compared with 1 at this same time last year.

Young people under 30 make up less than one-third of the driving population but are involved in nearly half of all fatal accidents. Worse fatality record in the 20-24 age group. With about 11% of all drivers, they score about 18% of all fatalities. Remember if you are in this age group a little extra time can save a lot of heart aches and lives.

Covington Co-op Plans Meet

The 1970 annual membership meeting of the Covington Electric Cooperative will be held Thursday night, August 13, at the Municipal Stadium in Andalusia. Co-op officials have announced.

Registration of members will begin at 5:30 p.m., with the entertainment program starting at 6:30, and the business session at 7:15 p.m.

Featured speaker for the meeting will be Dr. Harry M. Philpott, President of Auburn University.

One of the nation's top educators, and a dynamic speaker, Dr. Philpott was tapped for the Auburn Presidency in 1968. Prior to that time, he had served as Vice-President of the University of Florida for eight years, and taught at Florida and several other universities.

Some 30 electrical appliances, including a 23" color television set and an electric range, will be awarded as attendance prizes. In addition, each Co-op member registering will receive a free gift.

Entertainment at the meeting will be provided by the "Singing Spree Family," of Nashville, Tennessee, a group which won acclaim from Covington Electric members at the 1969 session, and is playing a "rescue" engagement this year.

Covington Electric served more than 11,250 members in Covington, Coffee, Crenshaw and Geneva counties.

Cooper To Head Elba Country Club

Ed Cooper was elected president of the Elba Country Club last week. This will be the fourth time Cooper has been elected by the Board of Directors to serve a one year term as President.

Elected to serve with Cooper were John C. (Bud) Windham, vice president and Ferrin Cook, secretary.

Members of the Board other than the above are: Everett Kelley, Clernon Hanchey, Bill Morrow, Willard Martin, Jake Luvert Morrow and Glen Vaughan.

GOLDEN ANNIVERSARY . . . Governor Albert P. Brewer is shown above (R) receiving a specially designed gold medal commemorating the 50th Anniversary of Vocational Rehabilitation in America from Dr. Ernest Stone (C), State Superintendent of Education. President Woodrow Wilson signed the first public law June 2, 1920 designed to assist disabled persons to return to work. Since then over 2 1/2 million Americans and 75 thousand Alabamians have benefited from this state-federal program. Mr. O. F. Wise, (L), director of the Division of Vocational Rehabilitation and Crippled Children Services in the Department of Education and who has served 43 years with the agency, has seen the program grow from a meager beginning to a multi-million dollar program affecting thousands of lives each day.

August Draft Call Gets 1 From Coffee

Director Hugh J. Caldwell, Jr., has issued an unces numbers, and registrants to temporarily postpone their August call for 187 registrants to be Alabama's part in the nationwide draft call for 10,000 men.

Caldwell said some 374 young Alabamians would be called to report to the Montgomery AFES in order to meet Alabama's quota of 10,000 men. Caldwell said some 374 young Alabamians would be called to report to the Montgomery AFES in order to meet Alabama's quota of 10,000 men.

The August call for the nation is 5,000 lower than the 15,000 called during July, June and May, he pointed out. The August call will include delinquents, those with religious objections, and those with other exemptions.

The call will not include anyone with a Ration Stamp Number above 195, Caldwell said.

Brown Named Elba Manager Of Telephones

James Brown, now Enterprise District Manager, has been named to fill the newly created post of local manager in Elba, and C. A. Jones, currently Division Marketing Manager in Dothan, will assume the duties of Enterprise District Manager. It was announced today by W. L. Entz, General Manager. Both appointments are effective August 1.

The new manager's post in Elba was created as a result of the rapidly expanding population and industrial growth in that area.

Jones, a native of Fitzgerald, Georgia, began his telephone career in 1958 as a switchman. Prior to moving to Alabama as Marketing Manager in 1967, he served for several years in the telephone company as a switchman, and as a telephone repairman. He and his wife, Jane, have three children. Brown, a graduate of Ochs High School, began his telephone career in 1951 as a switchman. He and his wife, Nedda, will reside in Elba.

City Launches "Were You Counted" Effort

The City of Elba has launched a campaign to find out how many residents were counted in the recent federal census. Reports indicate Elba gained only 60 residents in the last ten years. All local officials, including Mayor Jack Brunson state this is not possibly correct.

Elba has 1550 residential utility customers and this count would mean there are less than three persons per house.

City officials have organized volunteers into four teams to work the city wards, knocking on doors, asking "were you counted?" and obtaining filled out forms from those not counted. The federal government will accept these forms if properly filled out, according to Mayor Brunson, any one not counted can acquire forms from the City Hall.

25 years in the making.

We'd like to thank the makers of the other new economy cars for giving us such a nice head start.

It gave us time to develop an inspection system so meticulously scrupulous that it expects every VW to pass 16,000 examinations.

It allowed us to find out just a reasonably scientific pace how we could double our horsepower without doubling the cost of your horsepower. (The VW still gets about 26 miles to the gallon and requests only a smidgen of oil.)

It permitted us to work on things that didn't even have to do with the actual making of the car. Medi-car, the Volkswagen Diagnostic System, for example. Electronic equipment that can spot trouble in a car before it gets to be trouble. When you buy a new VW, you get 4 free Medi-car checkups.

Of course, it took great fortitude to resist squandering our time on phony styling improvements.

The beetle looks just as good for bad as it did 25 years ago.

HOUSING LOANS
Rural housing loans are relatively low interest rates can be obtained through the Farmers Home Administration. Repayment is over a long period when you do business with the F.H.A. in Coffee County.

GRAIN SORGHUM
A lot of folks are planting grain sorghum in place of or in addition to corn. C. C. Rhoades of Route 1, Kinston, has planted a good acreage again this year. Last year he did most of his planting on July 5. He made good yields which were easy to combine. Rhoades feeds his to his hogs and finds that it does about as well as corn.

Howard Smith, also of Route 1, Kinston, is planting cotton for high yields. He has 16 acres planted this year. How- ever, according to his own calculations he won't make much money from his cotton even with a good yield. Cotton prices are low and expenses are up more than ever.

VEGETABLE STAND
Mr. Louie Jones is a native of New Brockton and has an excellent roadside stand on the northern end of Enterprise. He concentrates on high quality tomatoes and vegetables and just about anytime you drive by there are folks trading with him.

This year he had a quarter of an acre in tomatoes which he staked, watered, staked. He sold fresh vine business to those who are willing to work hard and took care of right a- ripened tomatoes. There were opportunities in this work long hours, across the road from his.

County Gets Participation Payments

Approximately 90 percent of the farmers of Coffee County have received payments for participation in the 1970 Wheat, Feed Grain or Cotton Program, according to Roy L. Ellis, Chairman of the Coffee County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation (ASC) Committee.

Payments will continue to be made as rapidly as farmers continue to certify program compliance, and as fast as records can be processed through computers at the Data Processing Center in New Orleans and checks returned to the county ASCS office for distribution, Mr. Ellis said.

"The bulk of payments should be made by mid-August if farmers who signed up complete the necessary certification indicating that they have complied with all of the program provisions," Mr. Ellis stated. This is earlier than payments have been made in previous years.

Mr. Ellis pointed out that these payments to farmers have an impact on the entire community because most of the money remains in local areas where farmers pay for the things they need to buy. Participation by producers in farm programs helps even out the year-by-year flow of farm products to market, which also helps stabilize food and fiber production, a benefit to consumers.

"Farmers earn payments by diverting part of their cropland to conservation uses," Mr. Ellis explained. This helps keep a balance between supply and demand for food and fiber, preserves the excess acres for future use when they are needed, and provides an orderly supply of farm products to consumers.

Crop Insurance Sale Increased During Last Year

American farmers are buying crop insurance as never before, says Charles Maddox, Extension farm management specialist. Last year they purchased $4.4 billion worth, whereas ten years ago the figure was less than $3 billion. Hundreds of Coffee County farmers are participating.

Farmers today have more money at stake than in 1960. While natural hazards such as diseases and insects have been minimized by improvements in technology and cultural practices, financial risks are greater than a decade or two ago, notes Maddox. To cover these risks, farmers use two principal kinds of insurance.

Available since the late 1800's, hail insurance coverage has grown to about $3.5 billion. It is bought by over half a million farm operators each year.

All risk insurance, the other principal kind of coverage, offers protection against nearly all losses due to "unavoidable causes." Each year about 800,000 farmers purchase about $900 million of this protection.

FARM BRIEF
Agriculture is still the nation's biggest industry. The race of increased production in agriculture over the past 20 years has about doubled that of non-farm industry.

Soybeans, now ranking second in total acreage among row crops in Alabama, have a good chance of over-taking corn for first place in the '70s.

On my desk is a confusing little printed statement presented to me through a conspiracy between Mr. McRae and Mayor Jack Brunson. Someone sent it to Jack and one day he and Mack were trying to figure out its meaning and decided "whatever it means, we know who it applies," — and yours truly is now the proud owner. Here is how it reads — (COMMUNICATION PROBLEM — I know you believe you understand what you think I said, but I am not sure you realize that what you heard is not what I meant — To me this reads like a typical statement that would come out of Washington politicians so if you can't understand it either just pass it off as something originated by the "Washington Crowd."

After that little bit of foolishness I must remind you that Mayor Brunson has on his hands a problem he can't solve by himself! The census count in the "feds" shows only 60 additional people in Elba in the past 10 years and it is Brunson's job to prove them wrong. The groundwork is laid and work has begun but everyone must help if any improvement is made. Federal funds are allocated by the number of residents and rate of growth which means Elba will not do so very good with only 60 additional people in 10 years.

The Elba City School Board is about to complete moving the old barracks building from Mulberry Heights to the elementary school site. They owe much thanks to County Commissioner Flournoy Whitman and the other commissioners for extensive help on the project. I was privately thankful they were helping and now I find out they were also helping with some paving in Enterprise at the same time! This was done while they maintained their own roads and can only be accomplished by doing a lot of preplanning.

Last week a federal judge reversed the conviction of two Troy State students charged with possession of marijuana in their dormitory rooms. He said their "constitutional rights were violated when officers searched their rooms with no warrant, no probable cause for searching without a warrant and no waiver or consent." School officials reserve the right to search the dorms but the judge said this can't be extended to "others." Well, I wonder just how a problem can be controlled if the courts continue to turn loose everyone arrested in drug cases. Officers are almost to the point of looking the other way rather than bother arresting someone that will be released on technical "errors."

News releases indicate that neighboring Crenshaw County has begun a program to provide sanitary landfills around the county for the benefit of rural families having no way to dispose of their garbage. This is needed in Coffee County as well.

The garbage problem is one that badly needs a new solution, we can't keep piling it in holes forever — the holes are running out. I almost believe that a well organized company could make money reclaiming all the scrap wood, iron, glass, paper, etc. from the city dumps.

Civil War Deserters Invade Coffee County

The southern portion of Coffee, Dale and Henry counties with the adjoining part of Florida became a hiding place for deserters from the armies, runaway slaves and an increasing number of unprincipled outlaws. Destruction and near starvation brought desperation. These misguided men found it imperative to organize.

Eventually in the winter of 1862-63, a central camp was established. It was about fifteen miles below Geneva in the Choctawhatchee swamp of Florida. Realizing now that they were all outlaws, they called themselves the "First Florida Union Cavalry," and for two years these hungry whacking expeditions, under the leadership of Joseph Sanders operated independently and the people of Coffee and neighboring counties lived in constant fear of having their property stolen or burned.

In January 1863 Governor Shorter wrote to President Davis that nearly all the loyal men of Southeast Alabama were in the army, and that the country was suffering from the outrages of Tories and deserters. On August 4th of the same year he wrote to General Howell Cobb, Commander of the Florida District with headquarters at Quincy, Florida asking for help in fighting deserters. In January, 1863, Governor Shorter sent General Joseph H. Clanton to Coffee County to help organize a defense. A resolution was approved for the thirty-day enlistments of all able-bodied men for defense. A resolution was approved for the thirty-day enlistments

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is one of a series of chapters from Fred Watson's "Coffee Grounds," a history of Coffee County, that is now in the hands of publisher. The book, when released, will be 270 to 300 pages, hard cover, illustrating tax and handling and mailing costs. Mail your check or money order to Roy Shoffner, chairman of Publication Committee, 406 Doster Street, Enterprise, Alabama 36330.

of all able-bodied men for defense. The outlaws in Coffee County were called Ward's Raiders after one of their leaders. A Confederate soldier, John Clark, obtained a furlough from the army of General Braxton Bragg in eastern Tennessee.

He failed to return to duty, and the local people believed his story, that he was sent back to round up slackers for the army. At first Clark worked surreptitiously, but he was exposed when a letter that he had entrusted to another young man was lost. A young McIlaffey, boy found it and carried it to Old Brother Sims, the missionary Baptist preacher in the village of Clintonsville.

When John Clark learned that the contents of his letter had been divulged he swore to "get" the preacher. He surprised the minister early one morning in a dense wood near his home and threatened the old man's life. His treacherous was never executed, perhaps his forays with the outlaw gang kept him too much occupied. A home guard was organized at Elba to combat the marauders. Early one winter morning the guard made a surprise call at a house near Clintonsville, supposed to be harboring the criminals and scattered them. A tragic feature of that raid was the cold-blooded shooting of a young boy named Flowers.

The youth had hung around the camp and knew too much to fall into the hands of the guard. A short time later the home guard surrounded the house of Joshua Wheeler, supposed member of the gang. "Old Joshua in a desperate effort to escape, ran out of the house and leaped over the water shelf on the end of the porch. He was shot down but not seriously injured. The outlaws were infuriated by the shooting of home and threatened the old man's life. His treacherous guard to an open battle to be fought in Gutter's Field, a piece of cleared land on the east side of the road two miles from Clintonsville. The letter was ignored.

The stealing, cattle rustling and plundering continued. Getting still bolder, members of the outlaws would enter homes at night and demand money "or else." Some of them were recognized.

As so often happens, a woman played a part in the drama of the Pine Barrens, as the practically unbroken forest of the county was called. This woman was Mary Hutton, whose long braids of dark hair bore testimony to the Indian strain in her ancestry.

This pious woods belle wore full skirted homespun dresses, dusted her cheeks with pink "Swans Down" powder and looked coyly from under the brim of her quilted calico bonnet.

John, as a 90-year old woman, a girlhood neighbor, related 68 years after his death, "was the handsomest man that ever walked in shoe leather." At the time of the beginning of this story he was a soldier of the Confederacy in service in eastern Tennessee.

The orders of General Braxton Bragg said "advance" in the fighting along Missionary Ridge and Vimy but the memory of Mary Hutton's smiling eyes tug at John Clark's heart.

He finally opened a furlough home and resolved never to return. He told his sweetheart that he was tired of walking in the mud.

Before his arrival the county was at the mercy of a lawless gang of outlaws, deserters, slackers, cattle rustlers, rowdies, and cut throats, who pillaged at will and murdered defenseless citizens who offered resistance in the protection of their property.

Late in the afternoon of August 31, 1863, he visited the house of Mary Hutton for the last time. Leaving there, he and one of his associates made their way to a distant home where they were welcomed and given supper. The swash-buckling young braggart told his hostess of plans for the night. The "boys" were going to burn old Elba and kill two or three fellows with whom they "aimed to get even."

The old lady warned them that "The wages of sin are death," and pleaded with them to change their courses.

Laughing at her too, they proceeded to Elba. Other members of the outlaws joined them along the road. They reached their destination in the dark hours just before dawn.

The courthouse was the frame building surrounded by a picket fence. Within it were the Grand Jury, war and conscription records, which they wished to destroy. Their plans were successful. They fired the courthouse and its contents were practically destroyed before the fire was discovered. An old negro of four who were returning from the Gulf with a load of salt. They were reported to be planning a campaign against Elba, to get vengeance for their defeat there in 1863.

Dale and Coffee appealed the surrounding counties for help in guarding against the expected invasion.

About 60 Yankees and deserters crossed Coffee County and entered Dale, where they were soundly defeated in a night battle on December 18, 1864. The citizens of Newton were aided by the reserves of Barbour County.

A death dealing gun battle followed in which four of the home guard, William Bell, Mike Carmichael, Robert Brooks and Thomas Larkin, and one of the deserters were killed.

John Clark was wounded by a bullet, which cut deep into his right temple. He was taken captive along with another of his confederates.

The guard, with their slain members, started back to Elba. The procession was met by an angry mob of men and women as it approached the town. Excitement ran high and the east end of the present concrete bridge. The tocs of the dead men could be seen protruding through the ground.

The father received permission to take the bodies to the cemetery at Corinth Church. After burying his son, he disposed of his property and moved his family out of the State. The death of their leader ended the career of the outlaws he had so dare-devil-

Temperatures in the 90's can put a damper on your garden work. It can tax your strength and can create problems with lawns, shrubs and flowers.

When rain falls limited, it will be essential to water lawns and shrubs. The best time for watering is early morning since this schedule will allow the foliage to become dry. Late evening and night watering encourages diseases.

Don't overlook the rampart growth of weeds since many of them will be developing seed heads quite soon. Of course, if they mature and produce seeds, watch out for a bigger weed problem next year. Either pull or cut out weeds in shrub borders and flower beds. Keep lawns mowed weekly to help reduce the weed problems and to make your lawn more attractive.

Poor food handling in the home can cause illness. Foods such as meat, fish, poultry, eggs, dairy products and salads spoil easily.

Food may not be safe to eat if held more than three hours at temperatures between 60 and 120 degrees Fahrenheit -- the temperature zone in which bacteria grow rapidly. Refrigerate food promptly if it isn't served soon after being cooked. Hot foods may be refrigerated if they don't raise the temperature of the refrigerator above 45 degrees Fahrenheit. Large amounts of food should be refrigerated in shallow containers to speed the cooling. Extra care is needed for foods served at summer outings or even in a backyard barbecue. Food for such outings should be kept well iced in a cooler until served.

Corn herbicides will control broad weeds in problem fields. Once the weeds are under control, these fields can be used for crop rotation and herbicides can be repeated as needed.

Washington Report

by GEORGE ANDREWS
Member of Congress
Third District of Ala.

President Nixon can be thankful that Congress is made up of two equal bodies. His actions in Cambodia got him a swift kick of disapproval from the Senate—but the House of Representatives was ready with some handy first aid.

The Copper-Church Amendment was the product of months of wrangling in the Senate. It was bad legislation, harmful to our war effort, and probably unconstitutional since it drastically infringed on the President's power as Commander-in-Chief.

It was tucked onto the Foreign Military Sales bill by the Senate before it came to the House for action. Clearly it was the handiwork of Senate doves who seem to be in the majority in that body, although the mood of the Nation hardly seems to support their position.

The House gave the Amendment about five minutes of its time. It deserved no more than that, and a majority of the House exercised great wisdom in recognizing the fact.

In what is now interesting history, the fairly certain death of the Copper-Church Amendment came with House approval of a move to table a motion to instruct House conferees to support the amendment when they meet with Senate members in joint conference on the Foreign Military Sales Act.

For a matter that had occupied the Senate almost constantly, the House vote on Copper-Church was not even close. The motion to table carried by a 237 to 153 margin.

My opposition to the

SPIDER MITES CAN DESTROY ORNAMENTALS

A lot of Coffee County home owners don't realize it, but spider mites are running rampant on ornamentals. They are just about the most serious pest on roses, boxwoods, azaleas, hydrangeas, junipers, privets and carnations.

They vary in color. Some are green, others are orange, red, brown, black or a combination of these. A lot of them are red, but they are not the same. They are just about the most serious pest on roses, boxwoods, azaleas, hydrangeas, junipers, privets and carnations.

I control spider mites with Dimethoate, which is a systemic. The material is applied to the soil in the spring and watered into the root zone. Don't waste time on dusts because they are not effective. Plants can also be sprayed with Tedion or Kelthane. Be sure to cover the leaves.

MIDDLE AGED AT 27?

In 1920 when the average life expectancy was 54, a person 27 had lived half his life. Now thanks to amazing scientific discoveries, the average life expectancy is over 68 years.

Medical science has also made advances which permit longer life of today to be a healthier, more pleasant one.

ment is in no way an indication that I approve of the overall military strategy being employed by this Administration in Vietnam. I have long advocated a military victory.

Unfortunately, I see no evidence to indicate that President Nixon shares my views on this. I see, instead, a continuation of the of gradualism carried on by President Lyndon Johnson and his Defense Secretary, Robert McNamara. The Copper-Church Amendment would have prohibited the President from taking any action to help Cambodia or any other country which might help Cambodia. It was a speket for the Commander-in-Chief.

I find it rather frightening that every tactical movement - our armed forces make in Vietnam should require prior approval of armchair generals like Edward Kennedy, George McGovern, J. William Fulbright, and others of their persuasion in Congress.

a great many other members of the House felt likewise when they buried the Cooper-Church Amendment.

Sanctuaries in Cambodia or anywhere else should be bombed out of existence if they pose a threat to the lives of our brave young men fighting in this bloody war. In fact, Hanoi bombed as well.

However, this Administration has ruled out a military victory and announced that we are getting out of the war. If we are not going to try to win it, we certainly ought to get out, and as quickly as possible.

Supporters of the Cooper-Church Amendment are doing the Nation a great disservice.

complexity or winnability with some semblance of honor.

If their aims are sincerely motivated, they should take another look at the problem. If their aims are based on purely partisan politics, they should be ashamed, because they are doing the Nation a great disservice.

Vandals Leave Tracks In Enterprise

The Enterprise courthouse was broken into during the weekend by vandals who did considerable damage to books, deeds, maps, the walls of the offices, aerial photos and other important papers.

Apparently there was an attempt of theft and destruction of property for the purpose of the break-in.

Apparently the group entered by the door of the County Engineers Office where the greatest damage was done. Also the vault in the room used by the Highway Patrol and County Registrars was entered and damaged.

Enterprise police investigator, Frank Rainey, reports that some goodfinger prints are available and also one set of barefoot prints had been found.

ELBA BEAUTIES GRACE BAND CLINIC

Elba High School was well represented at the Troy State University Band Camp and Director's Clinic when two Elba girls were selected first and second runners up to the Rhoda Solomon, a green-eyed beauty from Headland.

They were Vicki Taylor, first runner-up, and Lynn Marsh, second runner-up.

Vicki, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Holloman Taylor, is a brown-haired, brown-eyed sophomore. Her hobbies include swimming, sewing and dancing. She is a member of the school's color guard, and received special technique instructions during the camp.

Lynn is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Marsh and will be a junior during the 1970-71 school year.

She has brown hair and blue eyes and enjoys the outdoors and skiing. She attended the camp and participated in the drum major division.

Herbert L. Oakes, president of Dorsey, commented that the corporation had been increasing its shares of the growing glass bottle market and that its glass business was benefiting from soft drink suppliers' new emphasis on larger sizes and design innovations, such as screw caps. He continued that the increased costs of manufacturing plastic bottles resulting from the innovative practices and reduced productivity arising from labor union demands for higher wages and machine repairs were, however, reflected in the first half's narrower profit margins and can continue to have some effect on earnings in the second half.

Mr. Oakes stated, however, that he looked for both sales and earnings to improve in the second half of the year if anticipated production efficiencies materialize.

"Our trailer business contributed increased earnings in the first half year," Mr. Oakes stated, "although sales were off, reflecting the softer economy. An intensive company-wide cost reduction and profit improvement program is under way and we are beginning to see some benefits."

Army Cancels Contract For Rucker Pilot Training

The U. S. Army has taken over flight instruction operations at Ft. Rucker following a log jam between striking workers of the International Association of Machinists and Aerospace Workers and an Army contractor.

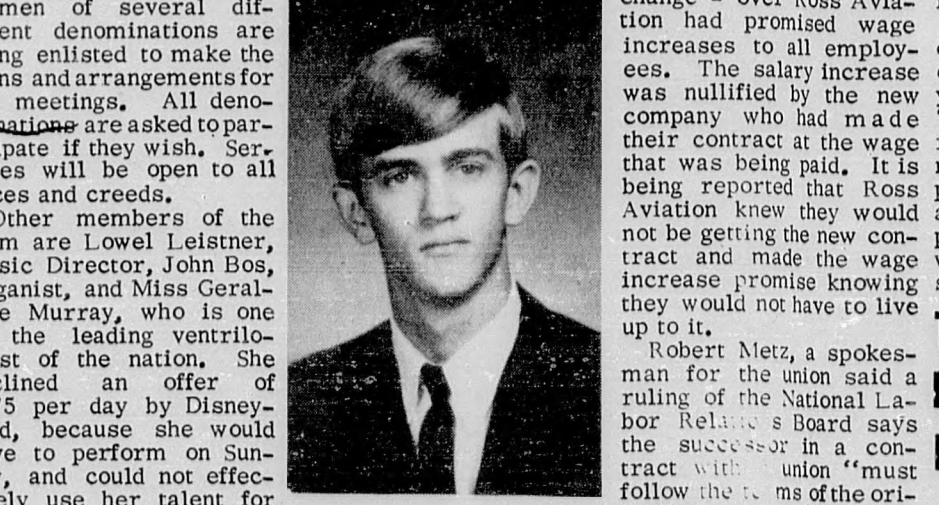

The Army said it took the action at noon Monday following a breakdown in negotiations between Local 2003 of the union and the new training contractor which resulted in a strike July 14.

Some 430 union members are affected by the lock-out.

The Embury Riddle Aeronautical Institute took over the contract of the old contractor, Ross Aviation, July 1st. Previous to the change - over loss Aviation had promised wage increases to all employees. The salary increase was nullified by the new company who had made a contract at the wage that was being paid. It is being reported that Ross Aviation knew they would not be getting the new contract and made the wage increase promise knowing they would not have to live up to it.

Robert Metz, a spokesman for the union said a ruling of the National Labor Relations Board says the success of a contract with the union "must follow the terms of the original contract."

It is reported that Army officials had given Embury Riddle and the union two weeks to iron out their differences. When they failed to reach an agreement Army officials at Ft. Rucker said military instructors had taken over instructions of both fixed and rotary wing aircraft.
